

COOKIE POLICY

This page describes the methods and purposes of the processing, carried out through cookies, of the personal data of users (hereinafter the "Users or the "Data Subjects") who consult the site <https://www.gliortidelbelvedere.it/en> (the "Site").

For further information on the other processing of personal data processed through the Website, please refer to the Website's Privacy Policy accessible at the following link: <https://www.gliortidelbelvedere.it/en/information-for-customers>.

1. Data Controller's contact details

The Data Controller of the processing is Francesco Baccaro, VAT no.: 09161890968, with registered office in Milan, Via Orti 10, tel. 02/49781425, e-mail address info@gliortidelbelvedere.it ((the "Controller").

2. What are cookies?

2.1 Cookies are small text files that websites visited by users send to their terminals, where they are stored in order to be retransmitted to the same sites on subsequent visits and are generally used for different purposes: performing computer authentication, session monitoring, storing information on specific user configurations, storing preferences, etc.

2.2 Based on the website or domain that installs the cookies, they can be distinguished into:

- ⊖ owner cookies: installed on the user's terminal directly by the owner or operator of the website that the User is visiting;
- ⌋ third-party cookies: installed through the site the User is visiting by holders of different sites or web servers.

2.3 Based on how long cookies are valid, they can be subdivided into:

- ⊖ session cookies: these are stored temporarily in the user's terminal until the end of the browser session. These cookies are usually necessary for the proper functioning of the applications and functionalities of the site;
- ⌋ persistent cookies: these remain stored on the user's terminal equipment for a longer period of time than the individual browsing session, depending on their function and the user's choices² regarding them. Persistent cookies allow information to be transferred back to the web server each time the website is accessed.

2.4 Based on the purposes pursued, cookies can be included into two general categories:

- ⊖ "technical" cookies, which, being strictly necessary to provide a service requested by the user, do not require the user's consent, and in the absence of which certain operations could not be carried out or would be more complex and/or less safe; for this reason they are automatically installed following access to the website; they include (i) browsing cookies that ensure normal surfing and use of the website (allowing, for example, to make a purchase or to authenticate to access restricted areas), (ii) functionality cookies (which allow the user to navigate according to a set of selected criteria such as language);
- ⌋ "profiling" cookies, used to refer specific actions or behavioral patterns recurring in the use of the offered functionalities (pattern) to specific identified or identifiable subjects, in order to group the different profiles within homogeneous clusters of different sizes, so that the holder can, among other things, also modulate the provision of the service in an increasingly customized manner beyond what is strictly necessary for the provision of the service, as well as send targeted advertising messages, i.e. in line with the preferences expressed by the user while surfing the web; this category also includes c. so-called "social cookies", i.e. cookies from social networks, used in accordance with the policies of the relevant social network, as well as so-called. "analytical cookies" - which are used to analyses access and visits to the site itself and to allow the owner to improve its structure, navigation logic and contents, to assess the effectiveness of a service provided or to help measure "traffic", i.e. the number of visitors, also possibly broken down by geographical area, time slot of the connection or other characteristics - unless they can be assimilated to technical cookies, which is possible only where (i) the use of analytical cookies is limited solely to the production of aggregate statistics and that they are used in relation to a single site or a single mobile application in such a way as not to allow the tracking of the navigation of the person using different applications or browsing different websites (ii) they are implemented and used directly by the first party site or, if of third party, appropriate means are adopted to reduce the power of identification (by masking significant portions of the IP address), and (iii) contractual obligations are in place between the sites and third parties which expressly mention the third party's commitment to use them exclusively for the provision of the service, to store them separately and not to "enrich" them or "cross-reference" them with other information they possess, or to transmit them to other third parties. As they are not strictly necessary for the functioning of the website, profiling cookies require the users' consent for their installation.
